

NARRATOR:

Successful businesses know that the key to delivering quality products and getting client satisfaction is having solid project management processes in place.

But who has the time to create, implement, and follow these processes? Projects have deadlines, so why not just dive right in?

A study by the Project Management Institute shows that organizations with little to no project management experience and low project management maturity levels only complete 40% of their projects on time and go over-budget 56% of the time.

Still think you don't have time for project management? Well, let us help. Our process is easy to remember and provides project managers with the knowledge to help increase the chance of meeting project deadlines and staying on budget.

Our model is called SPECS, which stands for: Start, Plan, Execute, Control and Sign-off. It's our blueprint for successful projects from start to finish.

Let's get started!
